

BRIAN HAN

Associate

Brian advises and represents clients in the defense of medical malpractice actions as an associate attorney at Hancock Daniel. With a legal concentration of Health Law in law school, and experience in civil litigation, Brian understands how to navigate through the legal complexities of a medical malpractice suit and collaborate with clients to develop persuasive defenses.

Brian received his Bachelor of Arts in Government and International Relations from George Mason University with a minor in Legal Studies. He earned his Juris Doctor from Drexel University, Kline School of Law with a concentration in Health Law. After graduating law school, Brian clerked at the Superior Court of Ocean County, New Jersey

Practice Areas

Medical Malpractice Defense

Licensure

District of Columbia

Maryland

Virginia

Academic Credentials

George Mason University,
B.A.

Drexel University, Kline
School of Law, J.D