

MARY SQUIRE

Partner

Mary Squire focuses her practice on corporate and regulatory matters affecting healthcare providers and organizations. She advises a wide range of providers and organizations on issues involving business operations, compliance, and governance. Drawing on her experience with her family's ownership of healthcare companies, Mary provides clients with practical, detail-oriented guidance tailored to the complex and highly regulated nature of the healthcare industry. Her collaborative approach enables clients to navigate evolving legal requirements while achieving their operational and strategic goals.

"Clients appreciate my ability to balance regulatory risk with business objectives while making the complexity of healthcare regulation navigable and aligned with their goals."

Prior to joining Hancock Daniel, Mary served as General Counsel of a large multi-specialty physician group. She serves on the leadership committee of the Corporate Counsel Section of the Utah Bar, in addition to a variety of other volunteer positions.
